

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system is described for managing memory, the system including, among other things, a memory with logic and a processor configured with the logic to receive an indication of an application state from a plurality of applications in memory and determine 5 which of the plurality of applications to effect removal from the memory based on the received indication.